Roots of the world series

Theme: football, emancipation

NICOLAS WILD (illustrator)

A former student of the famous Arts Décos illustration studio in Strasbourg, Nicolas Wild writes comic books. Author of the famous picture book series Kabul Disco, this tireless traveler continues his exploration of the Persian world in Iran with the picture book Silent was Zarathoustra, which earned him a selection at the Festival d'Angoulême and the France Info de la BD d'Actualité et de Reportage prize in 2014. In 2018, he participated in the multimedia series "Réfugiés" on Arte, in which he made comic strips about the people he met in a Nepalese refugee camp. His latest installment, Kabul Requiem, was published in November

JENNIFER VORMS-LE MORVAN (author)

After working as a director for Arte and RFO (a network of radio and television stations), Jennifer opened up the bookstore "La soif de lire" in Strasbourg. The rich professional experiences and extensive travels of this jack of all trades brought her to Nepal where she met Sunakali and the Pakistani director who made a documentary about her. She also told the astonishing true story of this little Nepalese girl for the "Racines du Monde" collection published by Éditions Cécile.

.... elsewhere, girls are fighting to play!

In countries still dominated by the patriarchy, sports, and football in particular, are important factors in female emancipation. This is what Sunakali's story illustrates.

Illustrator for very young children, she has a strong link with childhood that is like a bridge that she can cross with her imagination. Her books for the early readers have been published by Auzou, Eveil et Découvertes and Gründ.

Il sautait la tée dans sa gueule et la fit basculer sur son dos.
« En avant ! » hurla le grand loup.
Il courut à travers bois, fendant l'air et les touffes. La tée au chapeau rouge s'accrochait au grand pelage noir. Rarement elle s'était sentie si rassurée. « Tout droit jusqu'au village ! » cria-t-elle dans un accès de bonheur.
Le grand loup frôla des quatre fers. Le village ? Il était rempli d'humains qui voulaient sa peau ! Sa maman l'avait assez sermonné à ce propos. Peut-être s'était-elle trompée : et si sa tée était une sorcière déguisée ?...
